GOP Leaders Defy White House, Dulles In Foreign Policy Democratic Duel

By Robert C. Albright

A Taft-backed amendment to the Eisenhower-Dulles "free peoples" resolution yesterday opened a party-line Senate split on the Administration's intended "bipartisan" foreign policy front.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the President's denunciation of Soviet "enslavement" policies by an 8-to-6 vote, after amending the resolution by precisely the same

State Dept. Files Sought By McCarthy

Senator Acts to Get Loyalty Records of 2 Witnesses After Heated Exchanges

By Murrey Marder

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) yesterday demanded that the State Department produce loyalty records on two employes after the McCarthy investigators were charged with airing unjust charges against them.

McCarthy issued the directive during an angry hearing in which Reed Harris, deputy administrator for the State Department's overseas information programs, accused the Senator of unfair" tactics.

This raised the immediate imolication that McCarthy was headed for a showdown with the Eisenhower Administration over access to loyalty files. President Truman repeatedly denied them to congressional investigators, and his order is still in effect.

Use of material from such sources favorable to the United States' position was permitted, on the theory that it would have "special credibility" among certain audiences behind the Iron Curtain.

That directive found its way into the hands of the committee headed by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) who attacked the wisdom of making use of the writings of a Communist or one holding Communist ideas.

Thereupon McCardle, on instruction from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles rescinded the previous directive with a terse order to all propaganda officials—Voice of America writers, librarians abroad and the like—to stop using material by "Communists, fellow travelers, et cetera."

Lenin, in the last years of his life, regretted the huge power he had placed in Stalin's hands. He became critical of what he regarded as Stalin's ruthless, crude handling of rebellious Communists.

by DR. I. M. LEVITT Director, Fels Planetarium

There is a marked difference between the A-bomb and the H-bomb. In the first place there are beneficial by-products of the atomic piles which were built specifically for the manufacture of the A-bomb components. In the case of the H-bomb it is said no such benefits can be derived. Of course, the first guess of the scientist may be wrong. Possibly the development of the H-bomb may also open new and peaceful paths along which man can advance.

With the production and the detonation of the H-bomb will come a host of questions to which our civilization must find the answer or perish. An H-bomb can destroy any major city on earth. But the same amount of destruction can be accomplished by a number of A-bombs. Perhaps ten of the new A-bombs can do what a one-ton H-bomb can do to a city. And from our experiences in the saturation raids of the last war two A-bombs can paralyze a major city.

Except for the cobalt-hydrogen bomb, which combines both instantaneous and delayed lethal effects, most military men see little or no advantage in the H-bomb over the equivalent A-bombs.

Dr. Robert Fox Bacher seems to think we are hypnotized by the expression, "the bigger the better." In the case of this bomb this expression is misleading for the tremendous increase in size does not yield the proportionate amount of destruction. The only occasion in which the hydrogen bomb can be used with greatest military efficiency is against a concentrated ground army. With this weapon it might be possible to wipe out an entire army or at least an army corps of several divisions if not too widely dispersed,

It appears that H-bombs in the hands of the armed forces of the United States will accomplish little more than can be achieved with the bombs now available.

U. S. Vulnerable

Assuming that research on the H-bomb is being pursued in Russia and there is a distinct possibility of their having it by 1955-does the picture change?

To begin, the United States is more vulnerable because of the high concentration of industry and population in the cities. Also most of the large metropolitan centers of the United States are concentrated along the eastern seaboard. H-bombs could conceivably be brought to these centers either by surface vessel or submarine and could do incalculable damage before the potential killer was detected. Delivery of the H-bomb by sir is not likely, as in the case of all other types of weapons including the A-bomb.

While the cities of this country offer tempting targets, Russia offers few such rewarding objectives. There are no prime targets in Russia which can be reached by naval vessels. Not only is it difficult to deliver the bomb but Russia has no concentration of population or industry comparable to the United States. So, it appears the H-bomb will be a more effective weapon for use against us.

In the mind of at least one scientist, Dr. Bacher, who is about as well informed on this subject as any scientist outside of the AEC, it is more desirable to spend our substance on other weapons for which there is need than for a potential weapon which will not increase our fighting power in the proportion to the money and effort expended.

Scientists' View

Bacher is not alone in his efforts to deprecate the potentialities of the H-bomb. Other scientists feel it can do no one any good. As long ago as 1950 a group of some of the most prominent scientists in the country met and advocated the use of the H-bomb only after it had been used by someone else-presumably Russia. But can we let someone strike us first when we are so much more vulnerable to the effects of a weapon of this type? Only the military with their knowledge of our potential strength in all types of weapons can answer this question.

What are the moral issues involved in using such a weapon? As one distinguished scientist put it, "Is an atomic bomb moral and hydrogen bomb immoral, and if so, where is the dividing line?"

Dr. Louis N. Ridenour believes we can dispose of the "morality" argument quickly. "Once," he says, "it is decided that people are to be killed, the 'moral' question is fully settled; the instruments of that killing are not at all affected with humane or moral questions. It was probably more unpleasant to be disembowelled by the 18-inch sword of the Roman soldier than it will be to vanish in the flash of a nuclear reaction."

Road to Extinction

There was a time when wars were fought only on the battlefield. Today every city, town or village in the world is a potential battlefield.

There was a time when only men went out to war with the wives and children left behind in the comparative security of the heart of a country. Today there is no such thing as a non-combatant. Every soul in a country is in the line of fire and when the fire comes it may snuff out the lives of a million people in a few seconds. We seem to be riding a oneway street with only extinction and oblivion at the end of the journey.

The world has a frightening prospect facing it and it will take superhuman efforts to avoid the impending cataclysm. If these efforts fail and there is another war no one knows what the consequence may be. It was Dr. Albert Einstein who said, "The war after the next will be fought with clubs." Let's hope there is no next war for after that there may not even be present those who would use the clubs. (from The San Francisco Chronicle)

Top Officials Halt Mail Ban in Battery Man's Battle

By Edwin L. Dale, Jr.

A fabulous story of a last-minte reprieve from postal mailfraud action, granted by two members of President Eisenhower's Cabinet to a small businessman who has been in a running fight with the Government for five years, came to light yester-

The reprieve came at 8:25 p.m. Monday, after a day-long meeting of Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield and Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and their top assistants. In another hour all mail ad-dressed to the man and his company would have been returned to senders marked "fraud."

The small businessman, Jess M. Richie of Oakland, Calif., makes a battery additive which he claims adds up to two years to a battery's life. He has a large stack of evidence in sup-port of his product, including tests run by professors at the University of California, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Catholic University, a nanimously favorable report by the Senate Small Business Committee, and the backing of the Oakland Better Business Bureau and Chamber of Com-

Opposition Promised

Johnson, who got Democratic Policy Committee backing for the original Administration resolution just one week ago, said he will "certainly oppose any effort to attach partisan amendments that will jeopardize the President's prestige before the country and the world." In effect, Johnson was saving that the Democratic leadership doesn't intend to yield in its opposition to the so-called Taft-

Smith amendment. Earlier Sen. Alexander Smith had voiced a "hope" that Sen-ate Democrats would come over to the GOP position or some compromise language. Smith said he doubted the resolution would be allowed to go to the floor if a straight party-line vote was in prospect.

He said "there's every possibility something will be worked out."

Chairman Knowland termed the GOP amendment "the reasonable approach" and said both sides of the aisle should support it. Knowland said he knew of no disposition to "hold back"—that the resolution as amended will be reported to the Senate today, although it may not be taken up Knowland was asked if the resolution would be taken up if the Democrats solidly oppose it.

No Strict Vote Seen "I think there will be a vote." he replied. He said he didn't think it would be a strictly party-line one, however. Rep. John M. Vorys (R-Ohio), House sponsor of the original Administration draft of the reso-lution, which unanimously cleared the House Foreign Af-fairs committee last week, indicated he may offer an amend-ment similar to Taft's in the Vorys said he considered the Senate amendment "temperate and cautious" and that Dulles had used much the same language when testifying before the House group. The Secretary said then that the resolution "validates nothing that is in-valid." But he cautioned at the same time against a controversy that would threaten bipartisan

Harris was never questioned yesterday on the widely-pub-licized charges last week that the "Voice" dropped Hebrew language broadcasts to Israel in December and the claim later denied that cost it an effective means of pointing up Soviet anti-semitism.

Instead, the bulk of the Harris cross-examination centered on a book he wrote in 1932. Frequently when the line of questioning turned in Harris' favor, McCarthy shifted it back to the book. Harris, who is 43, and has been in various Government agencies since 1934, said he wrote the book, "King Football." "I've regretted it ever since," he said, for it put forth views on mar-riage, education and other subjects which he no longer holds. He said the book was written in the atmosphere of the de

When he spoke out for "academic rights" of Communists in his book, said Harris, it was "Communist with a small 'c.'"

In that period, said Harris, he felt that universities could accept Communists and Socialists as teachers. "I took 'Sen. Taft's position then," he said, "I don't agree with it now."
"I don't agree with the Mr. Taft. "I don't recall that Mr. Taft had the same background," put

"Mr. Chairman, I consider that a most unfair innuendo," retorted Harris.

Harris said, "I have been investigated by six agencies. I have been cleared right and left." Back in 1940, he said, the Civil Service Commission "read every page of the book that you're quoting from ... and they were satisfied as to my lovalty." were satisfied as to my loyalty."

McCarthy said he had asked if there was anything in Harris' file which showed he had been "cleared," and, "I was told no."

"I resent that very much," ountered Harris. He said every IIA employe must be cleared, under law. "You are casting in-

3 Bus Lines Ask Fare Hike To Pentagon

Higher bus fares between Washington and the Pentagon area in Virginia were asked by three transit companies in petitions filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was learned yesterday.

A hike from 15 to 20 cents in the one-way cash fare was sought both by the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co., and the Washington, Vir-ginia & Maryland Coach Co. (Arnold Lines)

Along with Capital Transit Co., the two suburban lines asked that the present joint fare involving transfers from one line to another be increased to 35 cents from 23 cents. Capital Transit noted its share of the present 23-cent joint fare is 11 cents, while 12 cents goes to the other company involved.

All three lines declared this division of the joint fare does not meet operating costs. The proposed 35-cent fare would be divided 17.5 cents to each firm. The companies also joined in suggesting that the 10-ride joint fare books be sold to the public

It took iron tires and heartaches to cross the country

THE EARLY TRUCKS were converted Model "T" runabouts. These little pioneers bridged the gap between the old creaking wagons and the behemoth speed-vans of today.

Somewhere high in the hills, the pioneer women faced a heart-breaking choice. What should they keep—what should they throw out along the rocky trail?

The covered wagons had to be lightened, to get the caravans through the steep stony passes. Above them towered the white and purple peaks of the Rocky Mountains; somewhere through those great bleak ranges the first track of the American Road led on west to Oregon or turned south to California.

Beside the chill mountain streams, in the lonely high pinesmelling valleys, the women looked over the precious household goods they had carried so many weary miles. There was the grandfather clock from the Old Country, the shining mahogany now covered with prairie dust. There were the colonial maple bedsteads, the curved captain's chairs, the latest in horsehair sofas, and the rocker that was so good for hush-a-byeing new babies.

Behind the caravan stretched thousands of miles of choking dust, shuffled up by the big red oxen (they took oxen because horses attracted Indians). Behind them were the fords across countless streams and rivers—because there was not a single bridge anywhere west of the Mississippi.

Now they stacked their furniture sadly beside the trail and went on. They kept pots and silverware and spinning wheels, firearms and tools. The wagons went on. The American Road was in the making.

For more than fifty years the nation was spanned by the rough wagon-trail, and a ribbon of railroad track. Then Henry Ford putt-putted down Detroit's Bagley Avenue in his funny little machine with a leather-belt drive.

Today goods crisscross the country swiftly in more than 8,000,000 motor trucks and trailers, hauling 122 billion tonmiles a year. Nearly everything that Americans eat and wear and use is hauled at some time by trucks. Trucks carry 75 per cent of all the freight in the U. S. Trucks more than pay their own way—last year they paid more than $1,200,000,000 in special truck taxes alone—state, city and county fees, and bridge, tunnel, ferry and road tolls.

Over the American Road the trucks connect every farm and hamlet with markets and sources of supply. Trucks are part of the assembly line of every manufacturer. Every kind of service, from garbage to mail to milk delivery, depends on trucks. Above all, trucks are responsive to the new movements of America—new industries, new locations, population shifts.

Ford Motor Company, celebrating its fiftieth anniversary this year, helped to pioneer the American Road. To us that Road is more than a highway on which we have placed some 36,000,000 cars and trucks—the Road is a way toward an ever better life for all mankind, through the increasing use of the automobile.

Messrs. Anthony Eden and Richard A. Butler are here from England primarily to lay before the Eisenhower Administration various decisions of the British Commonwealth of Nations at recent conferences. They want the Administration to go along with these decisions and to support them. If many Americans are thinking that the mission is just another gimme expedition, their reaction cannot be wondered at, for a succession of postwar visits has produced nothing more than a temporary alleviation of the underlying malaise. And when the trouble has broken through again, the blame has been put not on human agency, but on an abstraction called the "dollar gap"-an "impostor phrase," if ever there

Will the present mission turn out differently? Nobody but a prophet could provide an answer, but at least it can be said that, in addition to affording a correct diagnosis of economic ills, the nations of the Commonwealth have given some sign that they are intent upon seeking constructive solutions. In a word, the trouble is restriction-or trying to seek economic recovery by beggar-my-neighbor action. The emphasis is now upon expansion, or development. Undertaken in common, this would mean the breaking down of the barriers which prevent the return of a world economy. The man responsible as much as anybody for this change of emphasis is Mr. Butler, Britain's Finance Minister; and the translation of resolutions into deeds, assuming American support, will depend to a great extent upon the maintenance of Mr. Butler's leadership.

Thus the statesmen of the Commonwealth nations have at last started talking the American language -that the road to prosperity is more freedom, not less, less control, not more. The United States is dedicated to the restoration of a world economy resting upon currencies which are freely interchangeable. Only in that event will commerce be increased, prosperity diffused, and the forces of peace encouraged. Such a result is obvious after a moment's thought of what the unimpeded circulation of the dollar has meant to the American people. Before the First World War much the same ease of exchange was prevalent throughout the trading world as a consequence of the tying together of national currencies by common adherence to gold at fixed rates. A pledge to work toward a resumption of currency convertibility was the first and foremost of the Commonwealth resolutions.

The way to resume, according to Sherman's famous dictum, is to resume; he meant the internal exchange of currency into gold after the suspension brought about by the Civil War. Britain restored sterling convertibility into the dollar and thus into gold four years ago, but the result in her case was disastrous, because there was no concurrent effort to cope with internal inflation and external restrictions. Mr. Butler, however, has already done a great deal in the way of decontrolling the British economy. And the Commonwealth nations are held to have pledged themselves to work toward the same goal of liberation. For instance, the reports say that the nations producing food and raw materials have agreed to concentrate on this primary production, instead of seeking to withdraw national energy from primary production in an effort to establish modern industries. Then there is said to be on the way in Britain a restoration of free commodity markets, as, for instance, the cotton exchange in Liverpool. Finally, the nations in the Commonwealth are reported to have agreed upon a plan for coordinating the investment of capital in development projects.

If the visitors can produce agreements upon these lines, it would be in the best interests of the United States to support them, and not by word but by action. The United States is lagging in the stockpiling of materials, and a buying program would be in order in the interest of the American security. Simplification of the archaic procedure which governs the import of goods at American customs houses would be of great value in speeding up clearances. Finally, the United States, as the world's greatest creditor power, ought to take over some of the responsibility that the British have hitherto been shouldering in financing development in Africa and Australasia. The benefit of any such comprehensive program would be general, and, if Mr. Butler shows he can deliver. he ought to find here a willingness to back him in the performance.

Disrupting Morale

Apart from any ethical considerations, the office memorandum on staff responsibility for propriety in official conduct issued last week by the director of the Budget Bureau seems the worst sort of administrative nonsense. It exhorts every employe of the bureau to report to the personnel officer any conduct on the part of his fellow-workers which he deems "illegal, improper or detrimental to the interests of the organization." It stipulates that "in no case will the individual giving the information be embarrassed by disclosure of the source." And it threatens to penalize any staff member who fails to report impropriety of which he has any knowledge.

"This is not an invitation for snooping or gossiping," the memorandum states sanctimoniously. What else could it conceivably be? It amounts to little more than instituting the loathsome Nazi and Communist "block" reporting system in an agency of the United States Government-the system under which neighbors are required to report every irregular word or act on the part of those living in their neighborhood. It is not only a direct invitation for snooping and gossiping; it is an invitation also for the expression of malice and enmity under the guise of devotion

No doubt the new director of the Budget Bureau issued this memorandum for the praiseworthy purpose of insuring honesty and forestalling attacks from Capitol Hill. But honesty among employes cannot be insured by this sort of suspicious surveillance. And attacks from the Hill are more likely to be fomented than prevented by it; every informer who thinks that his victim has not been dealt with harshly enough is likely to go running to a member of Congress to complete his revenge. Moreover, free and conorable men and women cannot work in an atmosphere of pervasive distrust. "No one familiar with the administration of a Government department," John Lord O'Brian once said, "can doubt that the mere existence of any law or order authorizing secret investigations will encourage suspicion, distrust, gossip, malevolent tale-bearing, character assassination, and a general undermining of morale."

And, finally, this is a system repugnant to the American character. What moral disintegration have we come to when we exalt the informer and supplant mutual confidence with universal suspicion! "I believe," Judge Learned Hand warned not long ago, "that that community is already in process of dissolution where each man begins to eye his neighbor as a possible enemy . . . Such fears as these are a solvent which can eat out the cement that binds the stones together; they may in the end subject us to a despotism as evil as any that we dread; and they can be allayed only in so far as we refuse to proceed on suspicion, and trust one another until we have tangible ground for misgiving."

Solidarity In The Balkans

Good news is sufficiently infrequent in the cold war that the new treaty of friendship between Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia is cause for real encouragement. Although the treaty ostensibly contains no specific defense provisions, it indirectly links Yugoslavia with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, inasmuch as the other two nations are NATO members. More important, it brings a new feeling of community to three Balkan countries whose individual devotion to independence has often been demonstrated. This amicable arrangement is the more remarkable in light of the fact that only five years ago Greece and Yugoslavia were embroiled in a bitter guerilla war.

It is probable that definite military understandings will follow, at least between Yugoslavia and Greece. Reportedly the Greeks wanted a real military pact and the Yugoslavs were willing to sign one, but the Turks held back because of their primary NATO commitments. (Any military pact would, of course, have to be submitted to NATO for approval.) If, however, the present treaty of friendship will not provide integrated strategy, it should be at least a guarantee against intraregional squabbling, and thus fits into the framework for a regional agreement of the kind envisaged by the United Nations. Certainly it will strengthen NATO's southern flank.

This is the first time that a Communist state-Yugoslavia-has joined with non-Communist neighbors in a formal accord. The menace which brings them together, though not spelled out, is, of course, Soviet imperialism. The treaty leaves the door open for additional adherents, and sometime or other it may exert a strong pull on such satellite nations as Bulgaria, whose freedom has been swallowed by Russia. The next thing to hope for, as respects Yugoslavia, is a settlement with Italy over the status of Trieste. There is some indication that Tito would be willing to compromise here: but Italian politicians are playing the Trieste issue to a fare-thee-well in advance of the Italian elections. American representations ought to cite the Balkan accord in counsel-

Tax-Hungry Cities

In proposing legislation to ease the burden on communities in which the Federal Government has taken large areas of land off the tax rolls, Representative Broyhill was thinking of Arlington. He had good reason to do so. One sixth of the land in Arlington County, he said, is occupied by the United States Government. In a fast-growing community the loss of tax revenue resulting from such extensive Federal ownership imposes a very serious handicap.

Let no one suppose, however, that the case of Arlington is unique. Many other communities have felt a similar pinch since Federal holdings were so vastly extended in the Second World War. And, of course, the squeeze has long been felt in the District of Columbia. The Addison Committee reported last fall that "only 48.3 percent of the land area of the District (excluding streets) is on the tax rolls." In these circumstances it is not surprising that the Capital has been unable to keep abreast of its civic obligations.

It is often said that the District and its satellites have obtained large gains from the growth of governmental agencies here. Undoubtedly that is true of many real estate firms and of local business generally. But this does not minimize the predicament in which local governments find themselves. The influx of population has put severe strains on the schools, the highway departments, the police and other municipal service agencies. Even though new people mean new taxes, it is a losing proposition when the one big business in the area—that is to say, Government-is constantly taking more land off the tax rolls. Representative Broyhill's forthcoming bill will thus lay on the congressional doorstep a challenge that cannot be easily brushed off by arguments for general economy.

The Errors Of Yalta

James Russell Lowell says somewhere in the Bigelow Papers that a merciful Providence has fashioned us hollow in order that we might our principles swallow. This was the major trouble at Yalta. Spurred by his military advisers to get Russia into the Pacific war by hook or by crook, FDR "persuaded" Stalin to tear up his neutrality pact with the Japanese-a natural forerunner of all that happened to the Yalta accords. In this unmoral atmosphere there could be no different outcome: the encouragement of dishonor is not the foundation for building good faith and in alternative undertakings. Charles E. Bohlen in his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee omits this consideration in his evaluation of Yalta. He says there was no alternative to the agreements, though he admits there are two legitimate criticisms—the nonparticipation of Nationalist China and the fact that the concessions turned out to be unnecessary from a military point of view. Not only was the purchase made in dishonor, however, but the particular agreement on Germany is based upon what Lord Curzon once called the most "vicious" of all peace terms, viz., the wholesale transfer of populations, such as the Volksdeutsch back to Germany proper.

What, however, sticks most in the American craw, in our opinion, is that FDR came to this far-reaching and comprehensive settlement without some form of legislative concurrence.

Letters To The Editor

Robert M. La Follette, Jr. All of us have been shocked and saddened by the loss of so valuable a citizen, so valiant a fighter for American ideals as Robert La Follette, jr. This little story will show how early he developed an interest in questions affecting the public welfare. When he was a small boy in the eighth grade of the Force School, I was asked to go from Eastern High School, where I was then teaching, to be one of the judges of a debate in which he took part. At a Wisconsin University alumni dinner a few years ago I met him and re-called this incident. I reminded him that his side won and he was awarded first honors. He replied, "Yes and I can tell you the subject, 'Home Rule for the District of Columbia.'" as thoroughly as have the Balts," I wish to assure you that the Balts (Lithuanians, Latvians, and Estonians) have not been so scattered as to make the Baltic region a "no man's land." For instance, it was estimated that the number of escapees to the West was 150,000, when in reality it turned out to be about 85,000. At least half of this number will return as in 1919-20. The percentage of decrease in Lithuanian population is calculated at close to 10 percent because of the mass deportations to Siberia. The latest escapees from Lithuania confirm the important fact that the rural population remains solidly Lithuanian, and it is only the population of small towns that has been changed: Jews being replaced with Russians and Mongols. These settlers, when the dawn of liberation appears on the horizon, would certainly flee to-gether with the Soviet police, as was the case in 1919-20

Prince Georges Plans

The letter of Feruary 22, from Chairman Robert M. Watkins of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commi favoring continuation of that agency in its present form and with its present powers hardly can be said to represent an ob jective point of view. Question might also be raised about the support the commission is getng from spokesmen for the political machines and from the various county lobbies dominated by real estate operators and affiliated interests.

The Survey of Prince Georges County by Public Administration Service, which was pub-lished in 1951, does not contain the thinking of those who have a financial stake in the commis sion's activities and it might be a safer guide in considering the Delegates. The survey recom-mended that the functions of the ssion in the construction and maintenance of public parks and in the enforcement of zon-ing regulations and the building code, as well as those inspec-tional activities of other departments relating to building con-struction, electrical installation or similar inspections, should be

It was further recommended to the survey that Prince Georges County be given complete responsibility for planning within its boundaries and that a county office of planning be es-tablished for that purpose. Such an office, it was stated, would provide planning services for the entire county rather than only the part which is within the scope of the commission. It would more closely relate plan-ning activities with the legislative activities necessary for enforcement in planning control, and would permit better integration between planning and other county programs of governmen-

The counties and cities of Virginia adjacent to Washington have nothing comparable to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission in its present form, and in fact they seem to have done very well without it. People living in Prince Georges County are entitled to a county government which will perform all of the functions traditionally associated with county government. It should be one which is close to them, which they can control and which they can measure in terms of responsibility and effi-The performance county government functions by a bicounty agency remote from public sanction and review is quite likely to represent interests other than those of the taxpayer. #### Fairfax Mound Builders

As one drives along Arlington (Lee) boulevard from Seven Corners to Gallows Road one is impressed by the emergence of a new race of mound builders which has made its appearance in Fairfax County. The mounds which dot the landscape consist of huge collections of garbage and tin cans which the thrifty inhabitants of the county deposit along this beautiful highway. Occasionally they are adorned by large signs reading 'No Dumping." In some cases they are more than mounds. They reach back from the edge boulevard as far into the woods as the eye can see.

Apparently no effort is being by the Fairfax County officials to eliminate these eyesores. They are a breeding ground for rats which must plague nearby residents.

Is Fairfax County so utterly helpless in this matter? Are these mounds to be permitted to grow from year to year indefinitely as they have in the recent past? Surely a county which faced up to its educational needs as bravely as Fairfax County has done should be able to take appropriate measures to elimi-

The proposed legislation, which Mr. Watkins' well-oiled opposition attacked in Annapolis, would not destroy planning as his letter claims. It would greatly strengthen and improve it. The proposed reorganization would not abolish the Maryland-Nanal Capital Park and Planning Commission, but make planning responsible to local government, and concentrate the efforts of the commission on the development of a federally aided regional park system.

HAROLD P. MORRIS,

When U.S. Puts Its Best Foot Forward

By Malvina Lindsay

IT IS trite to report that visiting foreigners think Americans friendly and generous. But a young German woman said this the other day in such a way that those listening were deeply stirred with both humility and pride. Momentarily they saw themselves and all their fellow countrymen suffused with a nobler

The visitor was one of 12 German journalists who recently have been making reports on their American observations to the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor. Under auspices of the bureau and the Department of State they have traveled from coast to coast on a six-month travel grant,

"My idea of Americans," said Miss Marie-Cecile Schulte Strathaus, an editor of the Ruhr-Nachrichten of Dortmund, Germany, "was that they led rather easy lives, were highly commercial, a little superficial, very fashionable, very interesting—and not much interested in Europeans.

"Well, I have found they are commercial. They know how to make money and aren't ashamed of it. I saw also their many gadgets, their glamour—oh yes—and their emphasis on practicality.

"But many ask me, 'What is your chief impression of Americans?' This is it: they have a real gift of friendship, a will to give friendship. That I see as a reaching for world fellowship."

WHEREVER she went the visitor was asked, "What can we do to help you? How can we help Germany?" "And I remember." she said, "that when the first Marshall Plan money that we needed so badly came to Germany, we asked 'What does America want for this?'

"I want also to say," she continued, "that the deepest sense of generosity I met came from new Americans. From five Jewish immigrants, whose people had suffered cruelly from the Nazis, I received great kindness. 'Go back and tell our story,' they told me. 'Tell Germany we do not hate, that we only want to do something to make the world better.' It made me feel ashamed.

"I believe," she went on, speaking with deep feeling, "that in this democracy of America you have found a way of life that is more than a political institution. Nearly everyone seems to want to do something on the goodwill level, even in high politics. The meaning of all this, I think, is that Americans have a belief in mankind."

Kindness and courtesy of Americans rank high in reports of other members of this group. Many of the visitors also express surprise at the influence of religion in American life. Most of the journalists would concur in the remarks of a German trade unionist visitor sponsored by the Mutual Security Agency. He said: "I no longer think of Americans as being materialists. I think they are more deeply religious-if that is right word—than they themselves the realize."

AMERICAN family life held many surprises for the German women. They had heard much of American divorce and lack of interest in the home. But the frequent fine relations between husbands and wives, parents and children, impressed them. Someoverdone in giving children too free a hand. But as one report expressed it, "You have fun in your family life."

The German visitors felt that in education this country and Germany could learn something from each other, German education should loosen up more, give children more freedom. American education could well put more emphasis on scholarship, especially in college and university.

Some of the visitors wondered why children were given so much freedom of expression in grade and high schools, "really treated like small adults," then put back in mental swaddling clothes when they went to college. These critics preferred the European university system where a student is less regimented as to classes and dormitory life, and held responsible for his own mental progress and conduct.

In the main, people of this country may feel proud over the reports of the many visitors now viewing them in global perspective. But they may also find it sobering to think of some of the standards they may have to live up to.

For example, a woman member of a visiting German group (other than the journalists) handed an official of the Women's Bureau $100 on the day she was leaving. "For Korean relief," she explained. It had been saved from her travel expenses.

The official protested, saying the visitor would need the money in New York. "No," she said, "I will just do without some things. I want to share in this struggle for democracy. You Americans helped us in our great need. We must help others now in greater need. You see . . . I have learned in your country how not to be selfish."

This Morning Big Three'

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, Fla., March 3.—The bulletin boards of every major league baseball team in spring training today bore a new warning: don't argue with the umpires. It threatens to remove from the game one of the charming diversions that has been as much a part of baseball

The warning appears under the signature of Mr. Will Har- the Hoyas are basketball champs ridge, president of the American League, with instructions to post it prominently. He reminds the athletes that the "playing rules provide that any decision involving the accuracy of the judgment of umpires may not questioned." Which everybody knew. That reminder is routine in every spring training. The kicker in Harridge's pronounce ment that any player, coach or manager 'who leaves the bench or his position to question the umpire's decision on balls, strikes or half-swings, will automatically be banished from the game." Also be there foul or obscene language, "an automatic three-day suspension." Also the possibility of a fine. The automatic suspension gimmick for a player who protests the infinite judgment of the umpires is brand new. Sometimes umpires have been telerant, listening to arguments and walking away, but Harridge's latest edict leaves them no course except to give the player the thumb.

HARRIDGE GAVE no explanation of his new get-tough action, but inferred apparently is his desire of shortening some of the ball games that have been running to long hours. The paradox is that American League games have been short ones, compared to the delaying tactics in the National League, yet President Warren Giles of the NL has not been moved to any

The umpires were never clothed in such authority before. If Harridge makes his decree stick, they'll be the supreme bosses, not that the fans are necessarily going to like the new order. Player-umpire arguments always provided spice, and many a drab ball game has been saved as a spectacle by their raging

Under all circumstances now, the players and managers will have to take it and like it. No more can a manager come storming out of the dugout to protest a called strike in a critical situation on a ball that couldn't be reached with a 10foot bat. The moment he leaves his position to question Hizzoner, he's automatically out of the game.

OF COURSE, after that sort of a strike there is nothing to prevent the manager from leaving the bench and striding to the ump and saying, "Why don't you get in out of the rain," at the same time hinting by scowl and gestures that Hizzoner is all wet. An offended man may have no license to dispute, but his field for suggestion is unlimited. Television, which has been blamed for many other ills of baseball, may also be a factor in this newest crackdown by the league president. There has been some evidence that the umpires have not been outraged by these disputes, particularly when they know they are on teevee. Some of them have developed into some pretty fair muggers for the cameras, and welcome the idea of being on-camera when tossing their

A couple of years ago, Bucky Harris was thrown out of a ball game by an umpire, and when the report of the rhubarb was received in Harridge's office, Harris was fined $50, with the request that his personal check be put in the return mail. Harris complied, and appended a written note addressed to Harridge, saying, "Here's my check and we used to have better umpiring before television.

FOR SUCH as Mickey Grasso, he of the hot temper, the new rule providing automatic banishment plus a three-day suspension for any purple language, is a dismal thought to contem plate. Grasso will have to learn all over again how to conduct himself in a ball game.

Grasso is only halfway protected by the new rule. It penalizes a player who leaves his position to argue with an umpire, and Grasso is safe as long as he stays in the catcher's box; perhaps. But if the umpire backs away and Grasso in his competitive fury steps as much as one stride out of position to say one more naughty word, woe to him. He's out, perhaps for three

The Washington players were talking about the new rule today, and saying it won't work; that the umpires won't have courage enough to enforce it and that there's too much of an invitation for the umps to play favorites. One Washington player who must be nameless, opined, "If they want that kind of a rule in baseball, they'd better get some better umpires."

65-Year-Old Is Stricken After Hitting To Infielders

By Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, Fla., March 3 .-Clyde Milan, 65-year-old coach of the Washington baseball team, died unexpectedly late today from a heart attack, two hours after he collpased in the dressing room at Tinker Field.

The fatal attack followed a fungo-hitting session by Milan in the 80-degree heat. He walked to the clubhouse, called for aid, reclined on a bench and was semiconscious when rushed by ambulance to Orange Memorial Hospital.

One of the most active members of the Washington training camp despite his approaching sixty-sixth birthday on March 25, the veteran Milan insisted on hitting to the infielders in both morning and afternoon work-

"Coronary Occlusion"

The entire Washington camp was plunged in gloom at news of his passing. He had been the favorite first base coach of Man-agers Bucky Harris, Ossie Bluege and Joe Kuhel for the past 15 seasons.

Dr. Frank Gray, the club's physician in Orlando, said the cause of Milan's death was a "coronary occlusion." Milan told him he had previously suffered "pains in my chest" but did not report them to doctors.

A resident of Clarksville, Tex. after his birth and boyhood at Linden, Tenn., Milan was one of the brightest stars in the American League for most of his 16 playing years in the era 1907-1922. Clark Griffith called him Is Upset, 63-62 Washington's "greatest center fielder."

dent and general manager

ORLANDO, Fla., March 3. Cal Ermer, manager of the Nats' pennant-winning Chat-tanooga farm team in the Southern Association, came into the Nats' camp today bearing gladdening tidings for Bucky Harris. He declared three of his pitching graduates, perhaps four, were Harris heard Ermer expound at length on the skills of Al Sima, his 24-game win-ner; Sonny Dixon, who won 19; Big Jim Pearce, a 12-5 winner, and Bunky Stewart, "who also might win for you. "Sima, with a bit better luck could have won 30 games," said Ermer. "He has come up with a better fast ball, to go with his curve." Ermer appears to be most enthusiastic about Dixon and Pearce, however. "Dixon has slider to go with the speed, and if he didn't have to pitch more than those 19. 'That 12-5 record of Peace's is better than it seems. Big Jim didn't get away well, and had only a 5-5 record, but in those last weeks when we were trying to hold our league lead, he won seven in a row for us. You've got to like

The McCarran-Walter im migration act is raising hob with the Nats' training camp timetable.

Only pitcher Sandalio Consuegra and Infielder Pompeyo Davalillo have been cleared for entry thus far, and they have not arrived.

The others, Pitchers Con-

rado Marrero, Julio Moreno and Raul Sanchez: and Outfielders Angel Scull and Luis Visturer, are being detained in Cuba until they qualify for entry. The State Department has referred their status to the Internal Revenue Bureau in Baltimore which in turn must clear it for the United States Havana consulate, and partment before they are ap-

Bucky Harris has made a switch in his pitching assign-ments for the opening game with the Athletics on Satur-day at West Palm Beach. Bob Porterfield and Chuck Stobbs originally scheduled to work the opener won't pitch until Sunday.

The Nats stage their annual intra-club golf tournament tomorrow at the Dubsdread Country Club. The team of Clyde Kluttz and Shirley Povich will defend the title it won last year. SHIRLEY POVICH.

Crusade Ending, So Roosevelt It's Back to Fishing Upset, 63-62

THE UNRESILIENT course of a crusade is apt to make a crusader neglect other vital matters.

So preoccupied have we been in our attempt to get better fishing in the Bay and tributaries that the ordinary business of a rod and gun writer has been pushed

For a month we haven't even tried to catch a fish. All leisure time has been spent in the pursuit of conservation. We haven't even gone after a pickerel, which will be forbidden game in ten days, or a yellow perch, which is just now beginning to reach the height of its spawning runs in the brackish rivers and coves.

Worse, we've let the mail accumu-late. There's been little time properly to answer personal inquiries, which is al-ways a difficult thing in a busy season. We've assumed that our friends who didn't get a prompt reply understood Hugh Brannen why. We'll try not to offend again, but we would prefer a telephone call for any message requiring a personal answer. We're cleaning up our mail, mounting our reels, going fishing this week and in other ways getting back to normal rou-tine. Not that we don't always stand ready to help as the rockfish bills near a decision at Annapolis. Little is so im-

Butch Darley and Bill Morton boosted GW's lead to 13 points, 36-23, in the opening minutes of the third period. The Presidents held this lead until 1 minute to play in the period when Phil Perlo and Robbie Smithers pulled Roosevelt to within 6 points at 47-41.

With one minute left in the game, a free throw by Doug Yates and a basket by Les Mc-Menamin gave GW a 62-56 lead. Phil Perlo sank two fouls and a basket in the next 30 seconds and Roosevelt trailed, 62-60. Yates then scored a free throw and gave GW what proved to be its winning point—because five seconds later Smithers drove in for his game-ending basket.

Bill Bennings Says...

At Charles Town DEAR FOLKS:

Two parties of race fansone from Atlantic City and the other from Altoona, Pashowed up here Monday and were disappointed when Secretary Leeds Riely told them the racing had been canceled due to the snowstorm. They lunched in the clubhouse, however, and Reily obtained rooms for them in a Martinsburg hotel and presented them with passes for the re-mainder of the week. After his sparkling effort in winning here last Saturday, Owner-Trainer Mrs. Rebecca Graves Collins has decided to nom-inate Becky's Shirt for the rich Chesapeake Stakes, now a Laurel fixture. The son of Top Money is slated to perform on the Wednesday program, but at 41/2 furlongs, may not be suited. Winner of the Maryland Futurity as a 2-year-old, Becky's Shirt won closing day here las. December while carrying 130 pounds, believed to be the highest weight toted by a juvenile winner in 1952. Some of my friends took the "letter of the law" program on WTOP-TV Sunday a bit too seriously. In the lobby of the local Thomas Jefferson Hotel, a Jack's Green Card agent pointed at the video screen and shouted, "Look—they've got Haight." A track official explained, "Haight's not on trial." The agent shook his head and asked, "Are they trying Bill Lias?" Trainer Stanley Green, jr., played his part so well his friends are now calling his "Humphrey Bogart, jr." Good Wednesday program. See you on the rail—BILL

D. C. to Ask Law for New Charges on Sewer Lines

Pegged to City Rate For Water, It Would Help Pay Cost of Sanitary System

By Richard L. Lyons

The District Commissioners yesterday announced they would seek legislation to levy a new sewer charge July 1 which would cost the average homeowner $9.47 a year and the average business $98.96.

The charge would be used to help finance the sanitary sewer portion of the Commissioners' proposed 337-million-dollar, eight-year public works program.
The Commissioners have included $71,119,277 for sewers. This sum breaks down to about $25,500,000 for sanitary sewers and $45,700,000 for storm water

The sewer charge would be based on water rates. The revenue would be used only for sanitary sewer projects because only sanitary sewage, from buildings, bears a direct rela-tion to water use, the city heads

The Commissioners will ask for Federal aid—evenly divided between grants and interest-free loans—to pay for the storm water sewers.

Under the proposed legislation, they could set the sewer charge at 60 percent of a tax-payer's water bill. But they plan to set the rate at 50 percent to start. They said adjustments would be made for industries like bottling companies, which use a lot of water but don't discharge much of it into the sewer Revenue from a 50-percent sewer charge would total $26,-200,000 in the eight-year period, including $4,200,000 from the Federal Government, the Commissioners estimated.

ask Congress for permission to borrow five million dollars current interest rates from the ments on property abutting new sanitary service sewers from $1.50 to $4 per foot. Assessments are expected to produce about $2,500,000 during the program. Total revenues would be more than the $25,500,000 construction The balance would be needed to operate the system.

The total sewer program is the same as that recommended by the Addison Committee, a citizens' group which drew up a program for the Commissioners last year.

Biggest of the 37 projects listed is an eight-million-dollar job of expanding the sewage treatment plant at Blue Plains. Installation of secondary treatment facilities would permit the city by 1960 to remove 75 per-cent of the pollution from its sewage. It now removes about 33 percent. The other projects are for trouble spots all over the

Prentiss Asks Groups To Boost Works Plan

Brig. Gen. Louis W. Prentiss, District Engineer Commissioner vesterday urged all citizens groups to persuade Congress it should help pay for the District's eight-year, 337-million-dollar public works program.

Prentiss told the Civitan Club of Washington at a luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel that after a year of study by a citizens' committee and top city officials, the Commissioners found: (1.) The speeded-up building prowas necessary to prevent city institutions from "dying on vine," and (2.) the District didn't have the money for the

Spring at the Armory

By Arthur Ellis-The Washington Post

It may have been winter outside yesterday as these two garden club members Mrs. Mark O. Davis, jr. (left), and Mrs. R. B. Maloy arrived with their forsythia blossoms, plants and trowels. But inside the National Guard Armory spring already had arrived. Ever since Sunday night, local gardeners nurserymen and horticulturists have been transforming the vast building into a spring flower garden for the National Capital Flower and Garden Show March 5-11.

Mrs. C. Raymond Wire (left) of the Garden Club of Chevy Chase, with the help of Mrs. William Sabine, has decided where the azalea bushes will go in her club's entry, "Planting by the Garden Gate." The show is sponsoring many classes and competitive exhibits at the armory.

Working on their "Eastern Seaboard" garden for entry in the show yesterday were Mrs. Humphrey Daniel, jr., president of the Hoe 'n Hope Garden Club (left), and Mrs. Calvin Griffith. Both spent the day coaxing water lilies, Spanish moss and spring flowers into a garden.

Ralph Berry, jr., 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Berry of Kensington, Md., with his sister, Betty, 5, play at the colonial doll house erected at the show by Waynesboro Nurseries. Mrs. Berry is the president of the Woman's Community Club of Kensington. The show is sponsored by Allied Florists of Greater Washington and the National Capital Garden Club League, White House called District Commissioner Renah F. Camalier into conference yesterday to look him over.

Camalier is a Democrat, has erved only 81/2 months of his three-year term and never liked a job so much. He repeatedly has said he would not resign his Commissionship; has said "no comment" to questions whether would turn in his suit if asked to by the White House. The Eisenhower Administration, it is known, is considering asking Camalier's resignation, and yesterday's visit was believed part of that move. It was assumed the meeting was to give aides a "chance to look him

Commissioner Joseph Donohue, also a Demo-crat, submitted his resignation mmediately after Mr. Eisen-

Many in the Administration would like to replace both Dono-hue and Camalier to create a new Board of Commissioners. However, Camalier does have friends in the Administration, hence the gingerly approach to this second spot on the three-man Board of Commissioners.

Talks With Adams

Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams invited Camalier to meet with him. During the 20minute conference apparently no frontal attack was made on Camalier's job.

Camalier told reporters Adams wanted to know about District school conditions, recreation and the National Training School for Girls where there have been recent riots. He said they talked specifically about the lack of

IT WAS LOYALTY to Oregon, in fact, that prompted the McKays to leave it. A few years ago, when there was of his running for the Senate, Mrs. McKay was against the idea.

"After all, we were nearing our sixties," she says. "I just didn't want to go 3000 miles from home for six years."

The appointment as Secretary of Interior was a different matter. Ore-gon hadn't had a Cabinet member for 92 years and the McKays felt they owed it to the State, if not to themselves, to accept. Added to this was their great admiration for General Eisenhower. The whole family was for him. Even little

Mrs. McKay's Angel Food Cake

Whites of 13 large eggs Pinch of salt

11/4 teaspoons cream of tartar

11/4 cups sugar 1 cup and 1 tablespoon cake flour 1 teaspoon vanilla

Mixing directions, in Mrs. McKay's own words: "Sift flour and sugar separately six times. I use a very large platter and wire whip for the building of this cake. After putting whites of eggs on platter, I sprinkle a couple of shakes of salt from a large shaker, and then beat until frothy. Add cream of tartar and beat until mixture will make little mountains-just so it will shape up, but not too stiff. Then add sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, folding in gently, and then add flour, 1 tablespoon at a time. Last,

"Pour into large ungreased angel pan-just dust with flour. In my new range at home, which is very fast heating, I put the cake in a cold oven and set the temperature at 150 for 10 minutes, then at 200 for 10 minutes, then at 225 for 10 minutes, 250 for 10 minutes, 275 for 10 minutes, and last 10 minutes at 325 degrees.

"At the end of an hour, if it is not quite macaroon color, it can be left another 10 minutes. This makes a total of 1 hour and 10 minutes. When cake is removed from oven, it should be turned upside down on board or rack and not disturbed for at least 2 hours. Be sure it hangs free without touching board or rack. Then remove from pan and proceed with icing."

DEAR ANNE: For over a year I have been trying to find 1" or 1½" wide red upholstery webbing to make new seats for some kitchen thairs. It is, I am told, not available here in Fort Worth, but I have seen it in magazine articles on redoing one's house cheaply and imaginatively I'm sure. (Maybe you have to buy natural webbing and dye it, but I think it comes in colors.) I have a mail subscription to The Post and read your column daily. If you could tell me where the webbing is sold in Washington, I have relatives there (I'm a native-born Washingtonian) who could get it for me. Mrs. W. C. R.,

"So...I'm doing my necessary exercise. But how come my thighs are still flabby . . . and my feet hurt? What's wrong?" Answer:

Let's start your day. You get up. Your feet have had no air all night and less circulation. You put them in a pair of broken-down morning shoes or slippers. They are now in prison. You get Junior off to school and start the cleaning, still wearing those old shoes. You dash off to market.

You don't think of the neglect your feet and legs are getting. Now, let's start all over again.

THIS TIME you've made up your mind that you'll improve the beauty of your legs and feet. You, too, can be leg-ogenic. Here's how:

The first thing in the morning, for 10 seconds, stretch your legs toward the end of the bed, pushing down with your heels and forcing your toes up. Reverse the same stretch, pointing toes down. Repeat three or four times.

You have, by these few movements, increased the circulation in your legs. You know how important it is for your stomach to have that first cup of coffee? Your legs and feet also need food. The coursing of the blood through your legs and feet is food for our legs. Next, be sure your morning shoes give some support to your arches. As you prepare Junior's breakfast, start your day with a lift. Every once in a while, walk on your tiptoes. When you begin to tidy the house after the family is gone, as you dust and stretch, walk on your toes. No fancy $100 course in beauty salons can do more for your ankles, calves and legs than:

Child Health Day Set for May 1

The younger generation will have its inning on Child Health Day, which President Eisenhower has proclaimed for May 1. At that time Americans are urged "to increase their understanding of the emotional, social and spiritual growth of children, so as to apply this understanding in their day-to-day relations with the rising generation." Federal Security Administrator Oveta Culp Hobby, in discussing the observance, has said that Americans could do a tremendous job of preventing crime, unhappiness and mental illness if they would carry out the objectives of Child Health Day.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: They met two years ago at a My niece Nancy, 19, will be party, and immediately thereafter he asked twice for dates, married in April, unless we can break down this stubborn and each time failed to keep the date. Later they corresponded while he was in the Army, and now that he is back stationed nearby they have had five weekend dates. Nancy has been in and out of love before, but claims it is -the real thing-this time. We try to reason with her that it isn't true love, considering the strange courtship and Eugene's casual attitude towards her, but she is deaf to our appeals. It is upsetting the family and breaking her parents' hearts.

We believe she is going through with the wedding to spite the family; and can a marriage made on that basis work out favorably? How can we make her see that marriage should be sacred and not a

In place of active anxious resistance, such as the family is agitating towards Nancy's purpose, it might be more effective to manifest passive but sincere disapproval. For example, an honest but openhanded attitude to the effect that "I think you are mistaken and I don't like it, but after all, it is your life, if you insist, and you'll have to live it—" may jolt a brash adolescent into sober second thought. It is the detached, disinterested adult appraisal that does it.

Having stated your position, don't harp on it. Rather, be amiably neutral towards Euor towards Nancy's plans, insofar as you can. Of course if your temperament clashes with his spontaneously, during any attempts at social exchange, there's probably no value in trying to hide your true colors. In that case, better quarantine the difficulty, can-didly, by admitting ruefully that you don't get on-without assigning blame.

BUT IF possible, try to know the young man. Try to give him opportunity to come freely acquainted with the whole family, because this way you enable Nancy to see him in everyday guise.

According to your story, their romance has been pretty sketchy thus far, pegged on a handful of dates, which isn't much of a basis for proving the potentials of mutual respect and congeniality-essential ingredients of a good marriage. If Eugene really is wrong for Nancy, she should be helped to recognize it now, as can be done only if she

TIPS ON BUYING JUICE ORANGES

Just about the best-and most economical-way to give your family the Vitamin C they need ("C" can't be stored up—the body needs it daily) is to start them off with a big full glass of orange juice every day. Which means oranges are definitely a "staple" on your grocery list! Here are a few pointers to keep in mind next time you shop:

the oranges in your hands. The Florida fruit isn't ripe it hasn't heavier the orange, the more juice. The heaviest oranges have thin skins-more room inside for juice. (Florida growers take special pride in the extra juiciness, the extra-thin skins of Florida fruit.)

buying. You get as much juice per pound from small oranges as from large ones: every pound seven ounces of juice! Handy For a free recipe booklet, write shop once a week.

Don't just look-lift! "Weigh" | Don't judge ripeness by color. If been picked! After careful maturing in Florida sunshine, oranges are picked at the peak of flavor, graded according to size and speeded to you.

Only a greenhorn turns up her nose at the "green" ones! That greenish look you see sometimes is merely an extra burst of chlorophyll, the substance that makes plants green
—just before the ripe fruit's picked. They're fully ripe inside-loaded with sweet juice.

Better jot down "Floridas" of Florida oranges gives at least on your shopping list today! way to buy is a big bag if you Florida Citrus Commission, Dept. 03, Lakeland, Florida.

Device Helps to Curb Nervousness, Too

By the Gesell Institute

ARE YOU THE PARENT of a bed-wetter? And if so, do you hope and believe that he outgrow this awkward

Well, the chances are that he will. Many people there-fore prefer to wait, and to let nature take its course.

Others feel that after waiting a "reasonable" length of time for the child to manage to stay dry all night, they would rather step in and give him a little help. Often, surprisingly little such help is needed.

One reason that many parents do decide to step in and give this help is because not only is bed-wetting disturb-ing to the wetter and to all concerned, but also it has many undesirable side-effects. ne specialists believe that the majority of bed-wetters have this behavior because they are irritable, nervous and badly adjusted. Others, however, find the reverse to be true. They feel that bedwetters are irritable, nervous and badly adjusted because they wet. And that many of these undesirable traits clear up as soon as the child is able to stay dry all night.

THUS MANY parents have found that the use of Enurtone the Beat the Bell device which we described yesterday -gives them not only a dry child but a happy and less nervous child as well. Some specialists feel strongly that it is emotional maladjustment which causes young children to wet their beds. Actually we have known many cases of bed-wetting which appeared to occur quite apart from signs of emotional

In other cases, emotional disturbance may combine with slow development of toilet training to bring about this undesirable or unresolved behavior. In still other cases, a child who has actually been dry for a while may go back wetting if unhappy, disturbing things happen to him. This is because, as is rather generally known, the disturbed child often; shows his disturbance in that field of behavior which is his weakest. Some children react to an extremely unpleasant situation with stomach upsets. Others with headaches. And still others with bed-wetting.

But regardless of the underlying cause of bed-wetting, usually find that curing the behavior improves things with the child and in the ho even though it may not be the

How D' Ya Like Selling, The Hard Type or the Soft?

By John Crosby-

I SUPPOSE of all the complaints that pass across this desk the one that comes most often, year in year out, is the commer. cials come through loud enough to blast us out of our chairs. It seems to me this is unnecessary and simply a matter of poor management in the control room."

No, it isn't poor management. It's a deliberate (and, in some ways, understandable) attempt by the sponsor to make sure you don't get any free entertainment without paying the price of listening to his pitch. This is a violation of the Federal Communications Commission regulations, which insist that broadcasters maintain a consistent level of volume. Still, violations occur every half hour on most every radio and television station in the land and nothing is ever done about it. I don't imagine anything ever will be done about it unless the folks themselves express their disapproval by pafronizing those sponsors who use soft rather than hard-selling techniques. There is a trend in this direction One of the most effective of all salesmen on the air is Arthur Godfrey, a man who never raises his voice much above the level of a hearty Copyright, 1953, N. Y. chuckle. Faye Emerson sold Pepsi-Cola by the boxcar, all in a dulcet whisper. You don't have to shout at people.

NOT LONG AGO, Sponsor magazine, which makes more sense than any other trade magazine, declared: "There is a growing number of broadcasters and advertisers who feel that the radio and TV audience is fed up with high pressure commercials.

"Listeners and viewers, this group contends, are either gripped by an immense boredom or are restraining themselves from bopping station executives over the head with their own microphones every time they hear shouting an nouncers and other hard-selling techniques. The group is small as yet and no one among them will stake his reputation on the opinion that they will in time become a majority. Indeed, some broadcasters are having a hard fight right now con-vincing advertisers that soft, cool, extra-mild commercials are good for the ears.

Among those trying hardest to convince advertisers are the classical music stations. It seems to be axiomatic so far as audiences are concerned that Beethoven and painless commercials go hand in hand. Some stations like WQXR, New York, have gone through the mill and find advertisers pre-sold on the advantages of non - irritating commercials. Others, like WBMS, couldn't sell the listener and there-

Retta Dillon, currently of 509 Lanark rd., Juniper Green, Midlothian, Scotland, writes that while it would be a bit unwieldy to try to have The Washington Post follow her about on her travels, she does get frequent letters containing clippings from this department. So, to repay District Liners for keeping her amused while she's away, Retta forwards these Scottish gems:

As you might expect, much of Scotland's humor has to do with its best-known export. A favorite has little Sandy dropping in at a neighbor's house to announce: "McLeod, my father would like to borrow the nipper, "you're not about to start now." Retta doesn't exactly say the Scotch are stingy (except in jokes) but she does add that before she left Washington Dan Leonard, Water Safety Director at the Red Cross, warned that if she ever had to utilize her life-saving skills in Scotland, she should never call out, "Give me your hand." "Instead," he counseled,

'yell! 'Here, take mine'.' However, the Scotch are a very friendly and likable people in spite of the bad reputation they've gotten through the jokesmiths. For example, Retta passes along the story about the shepherd's helper who was asked, "Have you counted all the sheep?"

"All but one," replied andy. "He ran aboot so much I couldnae count him.

In a way, it was through thinking of his father that young Bob took his own life. He felt he had let old Bob down.

Actually he hadn't. Following in the footsteps of a man as brilliant and meteoric as the elder Bob, a man who had run for President, had come so close to building up a third party, had held the State of Wisconsin and much of the Northwest in the hollow of his hand, was a difficult thing to do.

But in the opinion of his fellow Senators, young Bob had all the courage of the old man. with more stability.

Humdrum Law Practice

After young Bob's defeat, he was considered for various Federal jobs, such as TVA administrator, but finally ended up practicing law. He was on the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck, and he represented the United Fruit Co. But it was pretty humdrum stuff compared with the days when he was battling things out in the Senate.

Young Bob used to get a little depressed about it. He used to come and lunch in the Mayflower Hotel, all by himself, just sitting and thinking—thinking how he'd let his father down.
